Fund manager commentary 30 June 2021

The rollout of COVID-19 vaccinations continued to gather pace globally, allowing authorities to ease restrictions and economic activity to accelerate. The majority of the world’s stockmarkets registered solid gains in the second quarter of 2021, buoyed by the widespread rollout of vaccination programmes which aided the reopening of economies. Investment returns among European shares were particularly strong as vaccination take-up in the region accelerated following a slow start.

However, the US and other developed nations saw inflation surge during the second quarter, driven by strong post-lockdown demand and shortages of some raw materials. Global commodity markets continued to reflect that rebounding demand for raw materials – the price of oil advanced by more than 20% during the quarter, for example. Fixed income markets were also higher in the period as central banks dampened speculation they would be withdrawing stimulus measures soon, and many investors seemed to shrug off global inflation fears.

UK commercial property returns continued to increase in the second quarter of 2021, with all sectors providing a positive contribution. However, greater polarisation is expected regionally, between well-located assets with the highest environmental, social and governance (ESG) credentials and the rest. Investor demand is likely to remain keenly focused on “beds and sheds”, as well as emerging alternatives.

The M&G Treasury & Investment Office (T&IO) outlook is cautiously optimistic although much uncertainty remains in 2021.
